

Dwight Dunk, LP.D. Joins Epsilon Associates

June 24, 2015

Epsilon Associates is pleased to announce that Dwight Dunk has joined the firm as an Associate. Dwight is a very well respected ecological scientist, regulatory specialist and project manager with nearly 30 years of consulting experience. Dwight has significant experience developing and implementing environmental permitting strategies, and securing approvals through NEPA, MEPA, the Clean Water Act, state wetlands and waterways regulations including Chapter 91, and local environmental regulations. His technical expertise focuses on freshwater and coastal wetland ecology, ecological restoration planning and design, functions and values assessments, resource area delineations, wildlife habitat assessments, and impact assessments for infrastructure and utility projects.

For nearly the past 20 years, Dwight worked for a major environmental consulting and engineering firm in Boston where he filled many roles during his tenure, including Group Leader for northeast based scientists and planners and most recently as a Senior Technical Expert supporting projects primarily in the northeastern United States. Over the course of his career his project assignments extended primarily along the east coast and mid-west U.S., though some assignments extended to the west coast and overseas.

At Epsilon, Dwight will be part of our Ecological Sciences group, where he will strengthen our energy and linear project practices and further develop and grow our coastal and inland permitting efforts throughout Massachusetts and New England.

Dwight holds a Doctorate in Law and Policy, an M.S. in Biology/Applied Marine Biology, and a B.S. in Biology. His professional credentials include: Professional Wetland Scientist, Certified Wetland Scientist (State of NH), Board Certified Environmental Scientist and Certified Ecologist.
